time.[23] He hired its composer, Gabriel Yared, to write a theme for his own film, The Lives of Others, and its cinematographer, John Seale, to work on the second feature, The Tourist. The facade works surprisingly well: just a few seconds too long, his Eagle Scout eyes a beat of eyelashes more than the calm gaze of any young man who does not bite. Variety. ISBN 978-3518465134. Secondly, two significant characters not found in the book are inserted in the film, which – together with other freedoms – completely changes both plausibility and final resolution. The consensus reads: "With the disturbing performance of Matt Damon offering a darkly twisted counterpoint to Anthony Minghella's lucid direction, the talented Mr. Ripley is a suspense thriller that induces." [9] On the metacritical, the film has an average weighted score of 76/100. Based on reviews from 35 critics, indicating "generally favorable" reviews. [10] The audience interviewed by Cinemascore gave the film a degree "C+". [11] Roger Ebert gave the film four out of four stars, calling it "an intelligent thriller" that is "unsidious in the way he leads us to identify with Tom Ripley ... Freddie shows up at Ripley's apartment looking for Dickie. When the hostess turns to Ripley as "Dickie", Freddie realizes fraud. Archived from the original on 11 May 2012. [4] The scenes that take place in San Remo were shot in Anzio, a tourist location near Rome. And in that opacitate we see the horror". [14] Charlotte O'Sullivan of Sight & Sound He wrote: "A tense and disconcerting thriller, married only by pacing problems (the central section drags) and an implausible characterization (Meredith's obsession with Ripley never convinces), is full of vivid and miserable life". "[[ 17] Berardinelli compared the film unfavorably with the previous adaptation, Purple Noon, who gave four stars. [18] He wrote: "The remake returned to the source material, The Talented Mr. Ripley by Patricia Highsmith. Ripley enjoys Dickie's extraordinary lifestyle and becomes obsessed with him. He.
